

Simone Cresti

He is a PhD candidate in Political Science, Comparative Politics and European Studies at the Department of Social Political and Cognitive Sciences of the University of Siena and he is carrying out a research on the determinants of success of European Research Projects.

His research interests are European funds in research, quality of research in Europe and the European Higher Education Area in general.

He also collaborated in research and studies on the behaviour of Members of the European Parliament (2014 and 2015). In the EUREACT Module he will hold a laboratory on elites' attitudes and behaviour (2016).

Currently he is project officer at the University of Siena for an international partnership called PRIMA operating in the field of sustainable development in the Mediterranean Area. In the past he acted as project planner and project manager for actions in the field of entrepreneurship (2014, 2015) and held a course for start-up and aspiring entrepreneurs on European funds (2015).
